Dear Sisters, Brothers, and Children in Jesus Christ,

Getting enslaved to our emotions can be very dangerous, for we humans can be remotely controlled by our own emotionality. Often, our 'likes' can be the cause of our own destruction. Emotionality can lead to a diminishing of the quality of our lives which otherwise may be termed 'dying'. No doubts, positive emotions certainly give flavor to the foundation of all human lives, but we cannot afford to be the slaves of any emotion.

Lent is a time to remind ourselves that excess of desires for a pleasurable life is certainly dangerous. There are always two options in front of us: Do I need to give importance to my passing emotions, or should I strive after lasting relationships (with God and with others)? Unfortunately, we repeatedly slip into passing emotions and get caught up with them, being enslaved to them.

Ash Wednesday (Feb 14th, 2018) marks the beginning of a new liturgical season. Let us try to make use of this season that the Church offers us in order that we rediscover the lost relationships (with our God and with others). May the moments of prayer spent with our God in the company of others, such as the celebration of the Holy Eucharist and other sacraments and our family prayer time, strengthen us to nurture more permanent and more loving relationships.

Yours in Christ Jesus,

Fr. C. P. Varghese

Pastor
