Dear Sisters, Brothers, and Children in Jesus Christ,

Happy Father's Day to all the fathers in our midst!

Being a biological father to a child is participating in the creative work of God, the Father. However, none has become a real Father by the mere act of begetting a child biologically. It needs tremendous amount of self-sacrifice from the part of a man to be a true father to his child. Nurturing a child holistically, in every sphere of human development – physical, intellectual, emotional, social, cultural, political, spiritual – is not an easy task today. So responsible parenting calls for dedication, sacrifice and genuine love.

In the gospel of today's liturgy, we see Jesus desperately and sadly pointing finger at the towns of Corazon, Bethsaida, and Capernaum. He is sad for there have been many opportunities given to the people of those places to mend their ways and be converted. Although in the gospels, we have no account of what miracles and healings that Jesus did in those towns, we can conclude from what Jesus says that much was done for the people over there. And yet, they did not respond to the privileges enjoyed by them. They showed perhaps indifference to Jesus. Probably they took things for granted.

This might be in some ways, our own experience of parenting our kids. We might get in return ingratitude, disrespect, and lack of concern for all the love that we showered upon them. And if we are children, it is good to ask ourselves the question whether we truly honor our parents. It is not just on the 'Father's Day' or 'Mother's Day' that we need to remember them. Everyday of our lives, we owe our profound gratitude and respect to our parents.

Jesus says, "You have been given much; much will be demanded of you"(Luke 12: 48). There are people out there who are not in such privileged situations as we find ourselves in. There are so many in the world who are in dire need of help physically, spiritually, and emotionally. Maybe we have the luxury of all of them. And so responsible behavior from us is what is expected by our God!!!

Yours in Christ Jesus,
